

Arcus Biosciences

Gilead increases investment but near-term concerns remain; PO to $25

Reiterate Rating: NEUTRAL | PO: 25.00 USD | Price: 15.30 USD

Despite Gilead support still cautious on late-stage pipeline

We look for Arcus Biosciences (RCUS) shares to trade with strength after announcing it was amending its collaboration with Gilead (covered by Geoff Meacham), with Gilead making an additional equity investment of $320M, increasing its ownership to 33%. The new deal is a positive for Arcus, extending its cash runway to 2027, ensuring funding of several early programs we've viewed favorably (e.g., HIF-2a). At the same time, we think discontinuation of ARC-10 removes a distraction with, in our view, tacit acknowledgement competing with Merck (Meacham) would be a challenge, especially with its position likely to expand given partnerships with multiple ADCs (see the latest BI data). But while we wouldn't be surprised if some also see positive read-throughs over Gilead's outlook on TIGIT, the core of Arcus' later-stage pipeline, we remain cautious on the MoA's clinical/commercial upside, the basis of our more circumspect thesis—especially given a recent spate of seemingly negative updates (see below). Thus while we recognize Arcus' improved balance sheet, after updating our model's TIGIT risk-adjustments (LoS: 31% from 35%), we still see shares as fairly valued. Reiterate Neutral, raising our PO to $25 from $23.

TIGIT: sentiment cooling following latest setbacks

Although the unintended Roche (Jain/ Parry) SKY-01 OS update reignited enthusiasm for TIGIT, expectations have arguably fallen again, especially after the final readout was delayed once more, this time to 2H24—a move prompting our KOLs to increase the potential for a miss to 50% from 25-30% prior (see our follow-ups on the leak). In addition, Coherus (not covered) and Pfizer (Meacham) separately terminated their TIGIT programs. To be fair, TIGIT may well prove effective for some indications (liver/ gastric datasets have admittedly encouraged), with use of chemotherapy—including Arcus' STAR-221 (upper GI) and STAR-121/131 (NSCLC)—proving the difference-maker. But even if successful, with several other developers still moving forward, e.g., Merck, Roche, iTeos (not covered), BeiGene (not covered), we continue to see limited opportunities.

Early-stage platform progressing with med-term potential

Among other updates, Arcus plans to use the additional funds to: initiate a phase 3 of HIF-2a inhibitor AB521 in ccRCC by early '25; and initiate a phase 3 for CD73 inhibitor quemoclustat in 1L pancreatic cancer by early '25e. Regarding the latter, we're not surprised Gilead is no longer shares costs (even as it retains the right to opt in later), with the initial data difficult to interpret given the refractory nature of the indication and some understandable questions about the early data (see our PDAC phase 1 takes).

Company Sector

Biotechnology

Company Description

Arcus is a clinical stage, oncology-focused biopharma. The company is building a novel portfolio of cancer treatments it intends to formulate into novel combinations for the treatment of both solid tumors and hematological malignancies. Currently, six assets are in the clinic. The company has entered into a number of partnerships with established oncology players, which are providing financial, technical, and eventually, potentially commercial support.

Investment Rationale

Despite the breadth and depth of the late-stage pipeline, we are cautious on the near-term trial read-outs given questions we--and KOLs we spoke with--have about the clinical potential and market opportunities. Ahead of several de-risking events, we believe more compelling opportunities exist elsewhere in SMid-cap Biopharma

Price objective basis & risk

Arcus Biosciences (RCUS)

Our 12-month price objective (PO) is based on our NPV analysis of revenue forecasts and estimated margin assumptions. We forecast sales of dom (anti-TIGIT), etruma (anti-A2a/A2b receptor), and zim (anti-PD-1), with profits and royalties distributed in accordance with partnership agreements. This includes sales of dom adjusted by an LOS range of 25-35% (vs. 30-45% prior) by indication, etruma (LOS: 15-20%) and zim (LOS: 15-45%). Given a WACC of 12% and a terminal growth rate ranging from 0% to -50%, we estimate a value of $7/ share for the partnerships ($3/sh for dom, $1/sh for zim, $1/sh for etruma, $3/sh for licenses/ milestones). Together with $17/sh for net cash and $1/sh for the pipeline, our PO is $25/ share.

Upside risks to our PO: 1) validation of clinical targets, 2) clear signals of clinical efficacy with good tolerability, 3) similar robust signals from the early pipeline, 4) expansion of collaboration deals for these assets, 5) accelerated regulatory timelines, and 6) strong commercial support from payers and providers Downside risks to our PO: 1) clinical trial failures, 2) emergence of meaningful safety risks likely to pose regulatory and/or commercial headwinds, 3) limited signs of synergistic efficacy of combo regimens, 4) regulatory delays, 5) competition from other players, 6) financial risks due to available cash to fund activities, 7) commercial pushback from payers and providers, and 8) current partners opting to discontinue their collaborations.

Analysts assign investment ratings considering, among other things, the 0-12 month total return expectation for a stock and the firm's guidelines for ratings dispersions (shown in the table below). The current price objective for a stock should be referenced to better understand the total return expectation at any given time. The price objective reflects the analyst's view of the potential price appreciation (depreciation).

BofA ESGMeter Methodology:

ESGMeter is a proprietary metric based on quantitative analysis and fundamental analyst inputs that reflects our assessment of a company's Environmental, Social and Governance-related attributes. The ESGMeter is intended to indicate a company's likelihood of experiencing stronger financial stability (higher return on equity and lower earnings and price volatility) over the next three years relative to peer group. There are three ESGMeter levels - Low, Medium, and High - which indicate whether a company has attributes most likely to translate into superior financial stability (in the case of a High level) or weaker financial stability (in the case of a Low level) over the next three years relative to its peer group. A Medium level suggests that a company exhibits ESG characteristics that are likely associated with financial stability results in line with its peer group over the next three years. Full details of our methodology, financial stability definition and disclaimers are available at BofA ESGMeter methodology. ESGMeter is not indicative of a company's future stock price performance and is not an investment recommendation or rating.

ESGMeter is independent of the BofA Global Research fundamental equity analyst's investment rating, volatility risk rating, income rating or price objective for that company.
