Industry mispriced 2024, but the Market is acting like it can't be fixed in 2025+

Reiterate Rating: BUY | PO: 520.00 USD | Price: 397.33 USD

Lowering our estimates/PO as 2024 numbers at risk

This morning, HUM surprised investors by meaningfully revising down its expectations for 2023 (Taking down FY EPS -8%, increasing MLR +50bps), driven by higher than expected utilization in MA. At the same time, while it believes it priced 'prudently' into 2024, and is seeing below average enrollment growth as a result, it warned that if current utilization trends continue, the impact could be 'material'. Given that MLR pressure in 2023 is now twice as bad as HUM initially expected at the time it priced 2024 (back in June) it raises concerns that 2024 margins could disappoint. To that end, its largest peers UNH and CVS both expect to see MA MLR increases of >100bps in 2024, and even though those companies are facing bigger reimbursement headwinds and growing faster, we believe it is now reasonable HUM's MLR should be increasing as well. As such, we are moving to 89.25% MLR (+125bps y/y off the new guidance), but decreasing our G&A as a partial offset, implying flattish EPS growth in 2024. Our new PO is now $520 (down from $640) which is based on 17.1x on 2025E vs 20.2x 2024E EPS previously. Reiterate Buy, though, given HUM's strong growth profile in 2025+.

What might 2025 look like? Case for 15%+ EPS growth

One of the things we like most about the MCO sector is the ability to reprice every year, which means that if cost trend takes a company by surprise, they should be able to reprice to a normal margin the following year, and in a worst case, if they realize the issue after already locking in pricing for next year (which HUM and the other MA MCOs appear to have at least partially done), then it will take 2 years to reprice. The "good news" is that this is an industry issue, which means that every MCO needs to reprice for 2025, creating an earnings tailwind for everyone. In theory, this still leaves open the potential for EPS to reach HUM's target of $37 in 2025, albeit likely doing so would mean another year of minimal membership growth. Although we believe HUM could do this, we think the only thing stopping HUM from earning $37 per share in 2025 is HUM. It is more likely, in our view, that the company decides to reset expectations and show balanced growth off of its new 2024 guidance, slowly repricing to target margin while growing top line with the industry. This lower bar should mean the higher end of its 11-15% LT growth rate for the next few years off of the rebased 2024, but also that it will take several years to fully recapture that earnings trend line.

The current price objective for a stock should be referenced to better understand the total return expectation at any given time. The price objective reflects the analyst's view of the potential price appreciation (depreciation).

Short-term trading ideas and recommendations may be more or less positive than a stock's fundamental equity rating.

BofA Securities is aware that the implementation of the ideas expressed in this report may depend upon an investor's ability to "short" securities or other financial instruments and that such action may be limited by regulations prohibiting or restricting "shortselling" in many jurisdictions. #### BofA ESGMeter Methodology:

ESGMeter is a proprietary metric based on quantitative analysis and fundamental analyst inputs that reflects our assessment of a company's Environmental, Social and Governance-related attributes. The ESGMeter is intended to indicate a company's likelihood of experiencing stronger financial stability (higher return on equity and lower earnings and price volatility) over the next three years relative to peer group. There are three ESGMeter levels - Low, Medium, and High - which indicate whether a company has attributes most likely to translate into superior financial stability (in the case of a High level) or weaker financial stability (in the case of a Low level) over the next three years relative to its peer group. A Medium level suggests that a company exhibits ESG characteristics that are likely associated with financial stability results in line with its peer group over the next three years. Full details of our methodology, financial stability definition and disclaimers are available at BofA ESGMeter methodology. ESGMeter is not indicative of a company's future stock price performance and is not an investment recommendation or rating.

ESGMeter is independent of the BofA Global Research fundamental equity analyst's investment rating, volatility risk rating, income rating or price objective for that company.
