4Q23 first look: Jan guidance bettered;
waiting for Kern EIR

Maintain Rating: NEUTRAL | PO: 64.00 USD | Price: 55.00 USD

Results better Jan 4th guidance

CRC's adj. EBITDA of $179mm matched consensus / BofAe of $179mm / $175mm, respectively, while the balance of results were in-line or better than 4Q guidance provided on January 4th. Net oil & gas production of 83,000 boepd matched guidance (82,000-84,000 boepd). C/flow before w/c of $131mm was ahead of Street consensus of $125mm; after capex of $66mm, FCF of $65mm beat the high end of guidance ($40mm-$60mm) on what was expected to be strong gas marketing earnings. Net debt improved to $44mm from $110mm, rounding out a solid financial & operational quarter.

2024 capex guidance: tiered scenarios for Kern EIR risk

With multiple moving parts to consider, including a pending merger (Aera Energy) and a ruling on the Kern Environmental Impact Report (expected within 4 to 7 weeks), CRC has provided two capital scenarios for the standalone portfolio. The base case sees FY24 spending at $300mm-$340mm to hold production flat at 78,000-82,000 boepd, on an entry to exit basis. Note planned spending betters our estimate of $380mm, with production in line. However, this is predicated on a positive ruling on the Kern EIR, that would allow CRC to obtain new well permits in the second half of the year – with drilling rigs ramping from 1 to 4. In the event CRC does not obtain new permits, capital could be cut by $100mm (to $200mm-$240mm), with an entry to exit decline of 5-7%, which is better than management's estimated PDP decline rate of 10-15%.

Huntington Beach valuation affirmed; but timeline?

Of CRC's catalysts, none are more transparent than Huntington Beach – the beachfront oilfield that could be monetized for its real estate value, and which we believe is worth ~$700mm net to CRC. New disclosure highlights a sale of a one-acre lot for $10mm, as one data point that could benchmark the value of the whole 90 acre strip. CRC estimates that capital of ~$225mm is needed to rehabilitate the property including $60mm-$120mm of 'surface and infrastructure removal' and $105mm to plug 350 individual wells. While the 90-acre strip has a potentially wide valuation range, at $10mm per acre would be ~$900mm is a starting point; less the $225mm for remaining work we see the net value of $675mn as a baseline for value. Note one wrinkle on timing is that with CRC plugging just 48 o/o 350 wells this year, the process may take several years.

Kern EIR and oil leverage still dominate investment thesis

While first revenues at CTV are still 2-3 years out, development milestones are being made, with the first carbon injection well permit progressing through public comment with a decision expected in 2H24 (Permit 26R); additional permits at A1-A2 and Frontier are not far behind. Updated comments around CRC's CalCapture CCS project at Elk Hills confirm that a second FEED study has been completed. However, FID is once again delayed, perhaps underscoring the marginal economics of this project. In our view, this leaves CRC's investment case dominated by oil leverage – and the pending closure of the Aera acquisition \(see our 8 Feb note\) expected in 2H24. While we wait for this to play out, we see limited upside potential against our current $65/sh PO, justifying our Neutral rating.

BofA GLOBAL RESEARCH

Price objective basis & risk

California Resources Corporation (CRC)

Our price objective of $64/sh is based on ex growth DCF value using BofA's base case commodity view through 2024 and a Long-term (2025+) oil price assumption of $75 Brent. We assume long-term HH natural gas of $4.00. We apply a long-term (post-tax) weighted average cost of capital (WACC) of 9.6%, which is based on the BofA strategy team's assumed risk premium and a five-year monthly beta.

Upside risks to our PO are a higher sustaining commodity price than we have in our base case and faster than expected monetization of carbon capture/sequestration technology/acumen. Downside risks to our price objective are (1) regulatory risks in California, (2) project timing delays could impact our growth rates, and (3) as an oil leveraged company, a weak oil price environment would affect our estimates and valuation. (4) A slower than expected monetization of carbon capture/sequestration technology/acumen.

BofA ESGMeter Methodology:

ESGMeter is a proprietary metric based on quantitative analysis and fundamental analyst inputs that reflects our assessment of a company's Environmental, Social and Governance-related attributes. The ESGMeter is intended to indicate a company's likelihood of experiencing stronger financial stability (higher return on equity and lower earnings and price volatility) over the next three years relative to peer group. There are three ESGMeter levels - Low, Medium, and High - which indicate whether a company has attributes most likely to translate into superior financial stability (in the case of a High level) or weaker financial stability (in the case of a Low level) over the next three years relative to its peer group. A Medium level suggests that a company exhibits ESG characteristics that are likely associated with financial stability results in line with its peer group over the next three years. Full details of our methodology, financial stability definition and disclaimers are available at BofA ESGMeter methodology. ESGMeter is not indicative of a company's future stock price performance and is not an investment recommendation or rating.

ESGMeter is independent of the BofA Global Research fundamental equity analyst's investment rating, volatility risk rating, income rating or price objective for that company.
