Takeaways from Rare Disease Day

Maintain Rating: NEUTRAL | PO: 315.00 USD | Price: 285.18 USD

Rare disease a key growth pillar

This afternoon Amgen provided a more in-depth look at its Rare Disease portfolio, highlighting the potential growth opportunities presented in this therapeutic area given the breadth of the company's commercial products and pipeline assets. Overall, while we are encouraged by the presentation which highlights 1) expansion opportunity for its four commercial products as well as future growth from development programs in areas that have been overlooked by investors and not currently in consensus models (e.g., gMG, IgG4-related diseases, Sjogren's, IPF), we think there's more wood to chop given the clinical and commercial risks associated with the development in these difficult autoimmune/ inflammatory diseases in an increasingly competitive environment. That said, for the commercial products, provider/payer education and commercial execution in the US and internationally will be key to drive future growth; for the development programs, we see will be seeing multiple phase 3 (gMG, IgG4-related disease) and phase 2 IPF data in 2H24, which could provide optionality and upside sentiment to Amgen's outlook. That said, obesity portfolio (AMG 133) remains key focus for investors, which we await for phase 2 data later this year (2H) in order to truly assess AMG 133's competitive profile. To that end, we maintain Neutral rating and $315 PO.

Tepezza opportunity remains significant

There remains a significant opportunity for TED in the US and internally given currently most of the treated TED patients have high CAS (clinical activity) score, with Tepezza market penetration in high single digits. Incremental growth from low CAS patients (4x high CAS) and international markets (Japan launch in 2025, Europe filing in 1H24) will drive growth in 2025 and beyond. Importantly, we think the development of subq formulation (phase 3 initiation in 1H24) will be key to improve commercial adoption. That said, Tepezza's potential hearing loss AE is a concern cited by KOLs and we note that there are several competitors (e.g., Tourmaline, Viridian, Immunovant) with assets in late-stage development that look to compete in this market in the near future.

Uplizna oppty in gMG and IgG4 may be underappreciated

Among the programs discussed, we are most excited on gMG and IgG4. Indeed, we think it makes sense that targeting CD19 should achieve a better/more comprehensive B-cell depletion vs. CD20, which should have more impact on autoantibody production, a key determinant of gMG/ IgG4 diseases. Importantly, a 6-month dosing could provide convenience and differentiation vs currently approved therapies in gMG (FcRn, complement inhibitors). That said, B-cell depletion is often associated with serious infection risk and it's unclear whether such MoA could show at least a comparable efficacy vs SoC. Further, other MoA targets are also being investigated, including IL-6, which we expect to see phase 3 data (Roche's satralizumab) later this year.

Sjögren's disease the next battle ground

Dazodalibep (CD40) is in phase 3 and has previously showed promising phase 2 data. That said, the field is crowded with competitors, including Bristol's TYK2 Sotyktu (in phase 3) and J&J's FcRn nipocalimab (positive phase 2 topline announced).

FUNDAMENTAL EQUITY OPINION KEY: Opinions include a Volatility Risk Rating, an Investment Rating and an Income Rating. VOLATILITY RISK RATINGS, indicators of potential price fluctuation, are: A - Low, B - Medium and C - High. INVESTMENT RATINGS reflect the analyst's assessment of both a stock's absolute total return potential as well as its attractiveness for investment relative to other stocks within its Coverage Cluster (defined below). Our investment ratings are: 1 - Buy stocks are expected to have a total return of at least 10% and are the most attractive stocks in the coverage cluster; 2 - Neutral stocks are expected to remain flat or increase in value and are less attractive than Buy rated stocks and 3 - Underperform stocks are the least attractive stocks in a coverage cluster. BofA ESGMeter Methodology:

ESGMeter is a proprietary metric based on quantitative analysis and fundamental analyst inputs that reflects our assessment of a company's Environmental, Social and Governance-related attributes. The ESGMeter is intended to indicate a company's likelihood of experiencing stronger financial stability (higher return on equity and lower earnings and price volatility) over the next three years relative to peer group. There are three ESGMeter levels - Low, Medium, and High - which indicate whether a company has attributes most likely to translate into superior financial stability (in the case of a High level) or weaker financial stability (in the case of a Low level) over the next three years relative to its peer group. A Medium level suggests that a company exhibits ESG characteristics that are likely associated with financial stability results in line with its peer group over the next three years. Full details of our methodology, financial stability definition and disclaimers are available at BofA ESGMeter methodology. ESGMeter is not indicative of a company's future stock price performance and is not an investment recommendation or rating. ESGMeter is independent of the BofA Global Research fundamental equity analyst's investment rating, volatility risk rating, income rating or price objective for that company.
