Cautious easing cycle in Hungary: short PLNHUF

NBH to be cautious: long HUF vs short PLN

We sell PLNHUF at 82 (target: 77.9, stop: 84.5, carry: circa 0.67% per month) ahead of the NBH's meeting today. The risk is crowded positioning in the forint.

The NBH is likely to proceed cautiously with easing given the importance of a strong forint for disinflation. Moreover, Hungary's balance of payments position should improve faster than in Poland, further supporting the HUF. In addition, higher real and nominal rates should be more supportive for the HUF against the PLN. We use the PLN as a funding currency also to hedge the risk of a stronger dollar in the short term.

NBH cautious easing to keep carry attractive

The NBH will likely stay cautious on rate cuts. The central bank pre-announced for the 25 April meeting another exit step from the emergency measures, i.e., cutting the upper end of the interest rate corridor currently at 25%. We think the central bank is more likely to focus on the signalling impact than go with a bold move, so we see a better chance of a 200-300bp than a 500bp cut. The NBH will not want the market to extrapolate the first rate cut to the rest of the easing cycle to the detriment of HUF stability, following underperformance of the HUF vs CE3 peers in the past week. Meanwhile, rate cuts from 25% may technically bring about a small tightening impact. Such a high o/n lending rate means that banks may have been trying to keep their liquidity higher than normally required to avoid having to go this facility. With the o/n lending rates much lower banks may be more comfortable locking their liquidity in longer-term deposits at the central bank.

The 23 May meeting will likely be live for the first overnight deposit rate cut from 18%, but we keep our forecast for June for now. It is a close call and dependent on HUF developments. We think the NBH will probably want to test the market with 50bp first, before moving to 100bp to normalize towards the base rate at 13%. We see the YE2023 base rate at 12.50% and YE2024 at 6.50%.

Macro still favours a stronger HUF

The HUF should continue to benefit from a better external balance backdrop and lower, but still relatively high, central bank rates outlook. The monthly current account deficit has started to narrow, with the 12m balance improving by c.0.5% of GDP as of February. The energy balance is tentatively improving, while the goods ex-energy balance posted a surplus for the first time in a year. We think the current account deficit could almost halve in 2023, from around -8% of GDP in 2022.

This document provides general information only, and has been prepared for, and is intended for general distribution to, BofA Securities clients. Neither the information nor any opinion expressed constitutes an offer or an invitation to make an offer, to buy or sell any securities or other financial instrument or any derivative related to such securities or instruments (e.g., options, futures, warrants, and contracts for differences). This document is not intended to provide personal investment advice and it does not take into account the specific investment objectives, financial situation and the particular needs of, and is not directed to, any specific person(s). This document and its content do not constitute, and should not be considered to constitute, investment advice for purposes of ERISA, the US tax code, the Investment Advisers Act or otherwise. Investors should seek financial advice regarding the appropriateness of investing in financial instruments and implementing investment strategies discussed or recommended in this document and should understand that statements regarding future prospects may not be realized. Any decision to purchase or subscribe for securities in any offering must be based solely on existing public information on such security or the information in the prospectus or other offering document issued in connection with such offering, and not on this document.

Securities and other financial instruments referred to herein, or recommended, offered or sold by BofA Securities, are not insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and are not deposits or other obligations of any insured depository institution (including, Bank of America, N.A.). Investments in general and, derivatives, in particular, involve numerous risks, including, among others, market risk, counterparty default risk and liquidity risk. No security, financial instrument or derivative is suitable for all investors. Digital assets are extremely speculative, volatile and are largely unregulated. In some cases, securities and other financial instruments may be difficult to value or sell and reliable information about the value or risks related to the security or financial instrument may be difficult to obtain. Investors should note that income from such securities and other financial instruments, if any, may fluctuate and that price or value of such securities and instruments may rise or fall and, in some cases, investors may lose their entire principal investment. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Levels and basis for taxation may change.

BofA Securities is aware that the implementation of the ideas expressed in this report may depend upon an investor's ability to "short" securities or other financial instruments and that such action may be limited by regulations prohibiting or restricting "shortselling" in many jurisdictions. Investors are urged to seek advice regarding the applicability of such regulations prior to executing any short idea contained in this report.

This report may contain a trading idea or recommendation which highlights a specific identified near-term catalyst or event impacting a security, issuer, industry sector or the market generally that presents a transaction opportunity, but does not have any impact on the analyst's particular "Overweight" or "Underweight" rating (which is based on a three month trade horizon). Trading ideas and recommendations may differ directionally from the analyst's rating on a security or issuer because they reflect the impact of a near-term catalyst or event.

Certain investment strategies and financial instruments discussed herein may only be appropriate for consideration in accounts qualified for high risk investment.

Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or financial instrument mentioned in this report. Investors in such securities and instruments effectively assume currency risk.
