

US Performance Monitor

New highs, narrow breadth

Quantitative Analysis

Equities hot in this Year of the Dragon, but no euphoria

Helped by better-than-expected earnings, the S&P 500 (+5.3% total return) clocked a fresh high in Feb. But just 26% of stocks outperformed the index, similar to recent months, and 45% of the index's gain came from four stocks: Nvidia (contributing 1.1ppt), Meta (0.6ppt), Amazon (0.5ppt) and Microsoft (0.3ppt). US equities outperformed other asset classes including bonds (L/T Treasury. Bonds -2.3%, IG corp. bonds -1.4%), cash (3m T-Bill +0.4%), gold (-1.4%) and ex-US equities (+3.5% in local terms / +2.5% in USD). Despite new S&P highs, sentiment is not yet euphoric (see: Sell Side Indicator), and we see a realistic bull case for S&P 500 fair value of 5500 (see: Relative Value note).

January redux: Growth & Momentum lead

The Russell 1000 Growth Index (+6.8%) beat the Russell 1000 Value Index (+3.7%) for the second consecutive month, but we see support for Value going forward – continued evidence of an accelerating profits cycle (see Earnings Tracker), improvement in our US Regime Indicator (see: Quantitative Profiles) and light relative positioning (see: Qwnership report). Momentum was the best-performing factor group we track (+6.2%), similar to in January, while Risk factors again lagged most (+2.9%). Quality performance was mixed: Low Quality (B or worse) stocks beat High Quality (B+ or Worse) stocks by 3ppt, led by non-ranked stocks (typically newer stocks with limited earnings histories), but the highest quality (A+) stocks beat the lowest quality (C&D) stocks by 1.2ppt.

But unlike Jan., Feb. wasn't just about TMT

All S&P 500 sectors were up last month, led by cyclicals (Consumer Discretionary +8.7%, Industrials +7.2%, Materials +6.5%). Tech (+6.3%) and Communication Services (+4.2%) also outperformed (but were lower in the line-up after being the top two sectors in January), whereas Utilities (+1.1%) and Staples (+2.3%) lagged most. Energy lagged most of the cyclical sectors despite a rebound in oil prices , and our technician sees more potential for upside risk from here (see: Commodities Technical Advantage note).

SMID comeback

The Russell 2000 (+5.7%) and Russell MidCap (+5.6%) outperformed the Russell 1000 (+5.4%) in February. We believe SMID momentum can continue, helped by a bigger earnings surprise (note)/better expected 2024 profits, inflecting macro data (manufacturing indicators, credit conditions, Global Wave, etc.) and improving sentiment/flows (but still largely in passive and not for single stocks; see flows note). Similar to within large caps, Growth (+8.1%) beat Value (+3.3%) last month within the Russell 2000, where Health Care and Tech were the best performers.

The performance does not reflect transaction costs or tax withholdings or any applicable advisory fees. Had these costs been reflected, the performance would have been lower. Performance is calculated on the basis of price return unless noted. Total return performance calculations assume that dividends paid on securities in a portfolio are deposited in a cash account on the ex-dividend date and are not reinvested. Past performance should not and cannot be viewed as an indicator of future performance. A complete performance record is available upon request
